TWO ARE KILLED MYSTERIOUSLY

DETECTIVE AND GIRL DISCOVERED SHOT TO DEATH IN AUTO SEAT

Son of Police Chief And Nurse Shot Through Hearts

Rumson, N. J., July 10.—A mysterious double killing—either murder or suicide—was uncovered here this morning by the finding of the bodies of Detective Sergeant Henry Walling and a woman in the rear seat of an automobile.

Both had been shot through the heart and death apparently had been almost instantaneous.

The woman was later identified as Miss May Lutzway, 19 years old, a graduate nurse of Monmouth Memorial hospital. The car belonged to young Walling, who was 25. The body of the girl lay partly across that of the officers and the gun from which two bullets had been fired, lay at her feet.

Walling was the son of Chief of Police William Walling of Long Branch and is said to have had an excellent record on the force. He was said to be slated to succeed his father as chief of police.

BELIEVE SIX HURT WHEN MOTOR SKIDS NEAR GOES STATION

Names Not Learned When Injured
Removed To Springfield—Auto Wrecked

Six people, thought to be colored residents of Springfield, miraculously escaped death when the six-passenger touring car, in which they were riding, skidded off the Springfield Pike near Goes Station, hit a telephone pole and capsized on the Springfield and Xenia railway tracks, Friday morning at 1 o'clock.

Names of the occupants of the machine, all of whom it is believed were injured, could not be learned. Other members of the same party were in a machine behind the wrecked car, and after the crash, took the injured occupants to Springfield.

The 5 o'clock northbound S. and X. interurban car, was forced to stop and remove the wrecked machine from the track before the car could proceed.

The accident happened near the Jacoby Hill, the machine skidding on the highway and after it struck the telephone pole, crashed through the heavy guard rail along the road and turned over twice onto the railway tracks.

Stanton, was encouraging, showing he has made 750 pastoral calls during the year. Forty-eight new members have been received. Reports of the Women's Missionary Societies, showed a gain over last year.

Dr. Crist commented on the fine spirit which prevailed in the conference. Dr. F. W. Stanton was given a unanimous invitation to return as pastor another year and granted a vacation for a month. He will leave for northern Michigan in about two weeks for a rest.

Cleveland, July 10.—Heavy rains early today ended the latest heat wave of the summer in northern Ohio. In Cleveland for almost an hour rain fell in torrents, flooding the streets and interfering with telephone and telegraph service.

Two motorists, blinded by the falling rain, who stopped their sedan in a depression at East 105th Street and Quincy Avenue, were rescued by police when rain filled the valley with twelve feet of water. An officer swam through the flood and placed a thirty foot ladder against the railroad bridge above, up which the motorists climbed to safety.

Six persons were hurt in automobile accidents. Two homes were struck by lightning.

The lightning played a prank when it set off a fire alarm at City Hospital. Light circuits were put out of commission, and trees fell across the streets by violence of the storm.

NEW GRAND JURY ACTS WHEN IT IS LEARNED INDICTMENT ILLEGAL

Court Recessed While Prosecution Corrects Legal Defect

Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—John T. Scopes, Dayton school teacher held for violation of Tennessee's anti-evolution teaching law, was re-indicted by a new grand jury here today on that charge after it was determined the original indictment was illegal.

Prosecuting counsel abandoned the original indictment against Scopes, after it was shown that the grand jury that returned the first indictment was summoned without required legal notice. The trial which began this morning, was recessed until the new grand jury was summoned and the indictment returned.

Court House, Dayton, Tenn., July 10.—While the civilized world centered its interest on the portentous struggle between religion and science, Tennessee today formally launched the trial of John T. Scopes, young high school professor on charges of violating the state's anti-evolution law.

The drama was staged in the habit of simple mountain folk in a courtroom thronged by shirt-sleeved tollers of the soil but its potential effects reached out into the far corners of the earth.

The trial started at 9:09 with Judge John T. Raulston presiding. The first act was a prayer by Rev. William Cartwright, of the local Methodist Church who called God's blessing upon the trial and its conflicting cause.

"May God send down a full measure of His infinite spirit to Judge Raulston," the minister added "so he may administer this proceeding so that justice may come to its reward."

Gathered from the great cities of the union were brilliant arrays of opposing counsel. For the prosecution, William Jennings Bryan, one of America's greatest fundamentalists and his son came to defend Christianity. When Bryan entered the courtroom a mighty roar of applause rose to greet him. This was the first demonstration of any kind and indicated clearly the sentiments of this whole mountain region.

By a coincidence this was the 29th anniversary of Bryan's great "Cross of Gold" speech at the Democratic convention of 1896 at Chicago. Then the commoner was leading a great political battle; today he was crusading for a great religious cause.

EVEN ENGLAND!
London, July 10.—England reflected the compelling interest drawing the attention of the United States to Dayton, Tennessee for the opening of the Scopes trial, today. Newspapers gave much space to the "monkey trial" and religious and scientific circles were almost persuaded to forsake the perennial British calm in their interest in the young schoolmaster's trial.

CITY ACCEPTS GIFT OF TRAFFIC SIGNAL SYSTEM FROM CLUB

Deevice Valued at $550—
Buy Caution Devices
for Danger Spots

Gift of the Greene County Auto Club to the city of a modern traffic regulating system to relieve traffic congestion at Main and Detroit Streets, was formally accepted by City Commissioners Thursday night.

The signal is mounted on a high iron pedestal, set in a concrete base and by a novel weight drop system operated either automatically or by hand control, regulates motor traffic.

The new signal will replace the present flower box traffic device and installed costs $550. The signal will be purchased from the General Electric Company of Lynn, Mass.

The red, yellow and green lights of the device, may be operated on any given ratio to change at regular intervals. The standard ratio is thirty seconds on red, for "stop," five seconds on yellow for "change" and thirty seconds on green for "go."

Believing the traffic situation has become acute at several street intersections in the city, the commission also authorized the purchase of two flash beacons and eight "buttons" at a total cost of $566 from the American Gas Accumulator Company of Elizabeth, N. J. The transaction was completed through R. A. Kelly, of Xenia, agent for the company.

One beacon will be placed at the Church and Detroit Street intersection which is believed by the commission to be one of the danger spots in the city. The remaining beacon and eight "buttons" will be installed at "five points" the intersection of Cincinnati Avenue, Second and West Streets. The "buttons" are lighted signals set down in the street while the flash beacon stands on a pedestal. Routine business was transacted during the remainder of the session.

TOO MANY LAWS SAYS LOCHER IN DEFENSE OF DONAHAY'S VETOES

Taxes Higher Than Rent
Lawyers Told—Law Enforcement Costly

Cedar Point, July 10.—Taxes have gone too high, declared Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, Ohio's director of commerce in an address at the mid-summer meeting of the Ohio Bar association here today.

Besides discussing the subject of taxation, Director Locher defended Governor Donahey's use of the veto power.

"Ohio taxes have depreciated the value of property," said Locher. "There is land in numerous counties in Ohio where the taxes, per acre, are more than the rental value per acre. There is no record in history of any people in all the world that have ever been prosperous and happy after government had become a burden. To many in Ohio, and in other parts of the country, government has become a burden."

Turning to the subject of legislation, Locher declared that "only a few of the laws are being enforced." He said that this is one of the "major reasons for the rapid increase in crime in this country."

"There has been a greater increase in crime in the United States during the last 20 years than in any civilized country in the world," Locher stated. "If the legislatures of the various states continue to run wild, most of the laws will be dead letters, or on half of the population will be on the payroll required to enforce the laws."

"The increase in taxes, the growth of government, the increase of crime, and hence, the happiness, prosperity and general welfare of the people, is what prompted the governor in 1923, to exercise his constitutional prerogative in vetoing 86 bills passed by the legislature, out of a total of 263, and, in 1925, vetoing 45 out of a total of 201 bills."

"I have serious doubts whether the governor was liberal in the exercise of his veto power. The consensus of opinion seems to be that a liberal use of his veto power would have included many more bills," said Locher. Locher asserted that "the wasteful extravagance that we have had in legislation and the alarming increase in the total of annual appropriations brings home to every student of political tendencies a danger that confronts us."

"We have been very rich. Our tax resources have been so great that the only side of the ledger that our legislators have taken great interest in has been the side of expenditures. They have proceeded on the assumption that there would always be money enough. The veto power of the governor exercises a good restraining influence in cutting down the total annual expenses of the government."

Ohioans contribute annually nearly $500,000,000 towards the support of government—federal and state, said Locher. Although the state has several hundred thousand dollars each year, the legislature meets, "this is a mere bagatelle compared with the extra cost imposed upon the people by the bills passed by the legislature at each session," Locher declared.

"People are beginning to realize that the tax dollar is a 50 cent dollar."

Asserting that "lobbyists, politicians, private interests and executive secretaries of organizations," last spring decided which bills should be re-passed, over the governor's veto, and what new bills should be enacted, Locher recalled that the last legislative day, April 17, about 200 new laws were made prior to the "fictitious five minute recess."

"The result was made possible by various members for bills they did not approve, in consideration of the votes of other members for their pet measures," said Locher.

"Some one has estimated that there are not a half dozen bills that meet the complete approval of a single member of either the senate or the house," Locher declared.

BLOW WITH FIST IS CAUSE OF MURDER

Athens, O., July 10.—A single blow from the fist of Dewey Motin, 27, colored, is alleged to have caused the death this morning, at Gloucester of "Booth" Henshaw, 27.

The affair occurred, it was claimed when Motin found his sweetheart, Grace Wright, 23, also colored, with Henshaw, David Henshaw, "Booth's" brother; Frank Trimmer, 62, and Allen Ray, 43, on a railroad spur shortly after midnight. Ray too is colored. The others are white.

Authorities were told that all the men except Motin had been drinking. Motin was charged demanding the girl be surrendered to him but Henshaw demurred and that Motin hit him over an eye, Henshaw falling dead. Later, Motin surrendered to Marshal Henry Williams at Gloucester.

ARREST TRIO FOR HOLD-UP ATTEMPT

Columbus, O., July 10.—Police here today are holding Waldorf H. Lang, 31, his wife, Pauline, 31 and Paul McArthur, 28, pending arrival of Lima authorities who are expected to question the trio concerning the attempted holdup Thursday at Lima of a filling station operated by the Radiant Oil Company.

Lang, Mrs. Lang and McArthur were taken into custody at 107 North Washington Avenue.

Police noted a Willys-Knight auto parked in front of this Washington Avenue address. Its license number, it was claimed, corresponded to that given by Lima police as having been on a machine of similar make in which the bandits escaped from Lima. In the car today, police said, were found a sock containing burglar tools and 42 boxes of cigars.

Records disclose, it was said, that the license number on the car was issued to W. H. Lang here.

NO APPLICATIONS FOR DANCE PERMITS

No applications have yet been received by Probate Judge S. C. Wright for either Sunday or week-day dancing in Greene County, he announced Friday.

Under the provisions of the Aisler-Van Wyke law which became effective Friday, Judge Wright has absolute jurisdiction over public dancing in the county on any day of the week. Judge Wright has been so notified by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe in reply to his request for an interpretation of the dance law.

Although he will positively refuse to grant permits for Sunday dancing, Judge Wright will permit week-day dances if proprietors comply with his regulations. Suggestions will also be given those persons applying regarding the regulations.

Judge Wright is undecided whether to grant temporary or permanent permits for week-day dancing during the month of July.

DOC SAYRE.

WHY DO THEY CALL IT DRUG STORE?

I sat in Doc's Store the other day sipping a nice cool drink. As I looked about at things on display, I suddenly started to think. I saw a few drugs but other things outnumbered far, far more. And I wondered just why the old name clings and why they call it "DRUG STORE?" There was candy, tobacco and gum, kid's toys and jewelry too. And clocks and watches and knives and guns and fine phonographs, a few Records and needles and radio sets, cameras and Kodaks galore. Now I can't understand! I am wondering yet. Pray why Do they call it "DRUG STORE?" There were paints and varnishes, pencils and pegs, tablets, paper and ink. Rubber goods, brushes and combs without end, rouge to make girls all pink. Powder, face creams, magazines, ice-cream and soft drinks galore. Now dear friends, can't you see what I mean? Oh! Why do they call it "DRUG STORE?" There's fishing tackle, sporting goods, electric lights and such Artists tools, draftsman's truck, of paper goods there's much. There's Kodak films and coffee, to name them all would bore. But folks, it's a shame, we MUST change its name its everything but "DRUG STORE." Lovingly EMMA.

"FIFTY-FIFTY" GOVERNMENT FINANCING

WE have read many severe attacks, of late, upon the habit of making congressional appropriations for some desired purpose, contingent upon an equal appropriation, or at least some specified proportion, to be furnished by each state that gets the advantage of the federal allowance. The particular point that we wish to notice in these attacks is that they assail indiscriminately all appropriations so conditioned. This is not a tenable position. There unquestionably are cases in which both a state and a national interest exist in something that must be done, and it is only right that a part of the cost should be met by federal taxation, and the rest by the state. The method may be and has been abused, but these abuses will not be eliminated by indiscriminate attacks on all joint state and federal action. An intelligent examination of each such proposition on its merits, is the only method that will forestall abuses and lead to intelligent action.

FINE PUBLIC SERVICE.

RECENT appointment by Gov. Donahey of two members of the industrial commission serves to call attention to that department of state government and the important service it has given the state. The latest action by the governor was the reappointment of Judge J. D. Clark of Dayton for a six-year term. Only a few months before he had reappointed Thomas J. Duffy of Columbus, formerly of East Liverpool, for a six-year term. Judge Clark has been a member of the commission since 1917 when he was called to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Wallace D. Yaple, of Chillicothe, who died in office. Mr. Duffy has been a member since the state first established the workmen's compensation department as the board of liability awards. He was first named by Gov. Harmon. Mr. Yaple was one of the first members and his years of hard work shortened his life.

The industrial commission handles all business under the workmen's compensation law. It was a new venture for the state when it was established and the work, difficult then, has become of vast volume and importance. From 500,000 to 800,000 men and women workers, according to the degree of industrial activity in the state, are protected by the law. The law provides the commission shall have three members, a representative of labor, one representing the employers and one the public. Judge Clark represents the public. He is a lawyer, the law requiring that one member shall be an attorney. Mr. Duffy has been the labor representative from the beginning.

In a very unusual way the industrial commission has won and retained the confidence of the entire state, particularly the confidence of both employer and employee. When experience proves a change in the law is desirable or required representatives of the Ohio Federation of Labor and the commission, the questions are considered, agreement is reached and both organizations support the bill in the legislature. Labor and capital war no more, now that Ohio has the workmen's compensation law. Industrial suits are rare in the courts, the state protects the worker, the employer agreeing. Employer and employee have quit going to the courts with their contentions, justice is done by and in the name of the state. Industrial peace has become the rule. Ohio has had during her history many competent and faithful officials but the industrial commission measures up to the very best.

FREE MOTOR RIDING.

DURING recent years, it has been possible for almost any boy or young man, and not a few young women, to start out on foot for some distant part of the state or country and arrive there in little less than the ordinary motoring time between the two points, riding almost the entire distance, through the kindness of automobilists passing along the route. There is probably not a college in the country, from which students have not made their way home at vacation time by taking advantage of such kindness.

At present, however, automobile drivers are rapidly losing the habit of asking the wayfaring stranger to get in. This change of attitude is chiefly due, perhaps, to the fact that in not a few cases, boys or young men apparently innocent, after gaining access to an automobile in this way, have taken advantage of some lonely spot along the road to draw a revolver, rob the driver and make off, sometimes taking the automobile as well as the driver's money.

Each driver of a car, or owner, if the driver is an employed chauffeur, must judge for himself whom he may safely take in. The "hitch-hiking" habit, however, should be discouraged. A young man who sets out deliberately to "beat his way" across the country by appealing to the kindness of drivers whom he does not know, and to whom he cannot return the favor, will be considered by many as just a little lacking in self-respect.

An experienced housekeeper sometimes forgets that there are young housewives to whom the science of jelly-making is still a mystery! But, with a little experimenting, the Bride Housekeeper soon learns that it is a simple task to make delicious jelly. Here are some of the important points of the art:

In the first place, no jelly is going to "jell" unless the fruit from which you make it contains enough of that gummy vegetable-starch called "pectin" which stiffens jelly. Some fruits are rich in this substance, others poor. The pectin-rich fruits are apples, currants, and oranges (in the orange the pectin lies in that thick white upper-part of the skin).

So, if you wish to make jelly from Strawberries, blackberries, blueberries, raspberries, rhubarb or any of the other fruits which have but a low percentage of pectin, you must use one part of this fruit with one part of the pectin-rich fruit to obtain a good, firm jelly.

To make Red Raspberry Jelly, for instance, wash an equal measure of the berries and white currants. Place this combination over the fire with no water (only the hard fruits such as apples, pears, and quinces need a little water to keep them from sticking to the bottom of the preserving kettle). When hot crush the fruit and continue to cook gently till it is soft. Then drain through a double thickness of cheesecloth, but do not squeeze (if you squeeze the jelly bag, you will have a cloudy, instead of a clear, jelly). This mere dripping of the juice makes what is called a "first extraction" jelly, a clear jelly. After you have made jelly from it you can re-heat the fruit in the jelly bag, adding a very little water, and again drain it through the bag, this time squeezing it, to obtain what is called a "second extraction" jelly, this second "batch" will not be clear but it will be just as delicious and useful on the home table.

When the juice has finished dripping from the unsqueezed contents of the bag, measure it by cupfuls. To every cupful of it add one cupful of granulated sugar. Put the pot over a good fire and let come to boil. Then simmer for five minutes. Now is the time to begin making the "jelly test": take up a little of the cooking juice in a tablespoon hold it high in the air, and drip it back into the pot. If two drops from on the edge of the empty spoon, your jelly is ready to be turned into hot glasses which you have "sterilized" by boiling 15 minutes in clear water and allowed to cool. But it will most likely take ten minutes for the jelly to reach the "jelling" stage.

NOSES

The most characteristic feature of any face is its nose. It is the one feature that age tampers with the least.

And it is the one feature that keys a character more than any other.

The luster from beautiful eyes in time must fade and grow dull, rich, full lips that have glowed in color, and cheeks that have blushed into coyful beauty, all in time drop as silently as the leaves of autumn and leave but the lovely memory of their former glow. But the nose remains its truest right up to the end.

It is said of Napoleon that he chose his Generals by their noses. Surely there is no feature of the face that is a truer index to character and beauty. A beautiful nose is a rare thing, too. Study the next face that you see and decide for yourself.

I am always amused at those who think they can improve upon the Creator, however, and so have some "specialist" reshape their noses. As for myself, I am very certain that my nose is no beauty, but I would not have it changed for the world. I would sooner have a new face entirely.

And what a useful member the nose is! It helps us to love the flower a thousand times more by giving us its exquisite fragrance. And it guards the eyes as the gate to some grand estate. While to the lips it lends its dignity.

Another interesting thing about the nose is that it is the one feature that goes farther than any other in denoting racial characteristics. And so we have the Roman nose, the Greek nose and others quite as noted. And we speak of each as classic, strong, weak, noble and honest.

Employers tell me that they choose by the nose oftener than by any other feature of the face. So that a good nose is often much more to be desired than "great riches!"

But regardless of everything the very nose you have is the best one in all this world for you, so be good to it and keep it intact. It is beautiful only so long as it is useful.

NAVY FLYERS WILL HAVE DIFFICULTY SPOTTING HAWAII

Honolulu, July 10.—The Hawaiian Islands, despite the fact that they have three mountain peaks of more than 10,000 feet altitude and spread from northwest to southeast over a 200-mile span of ocean will be very difficult objects for the Pacific fliers to "pick up" from the air, according to Captain S. E. Moses, who will be in charge of the flight to Honolulu by navy airplanes next August or September.

Captain Moses has recently spent much time in the air, studying the conditions that are apt to be met by the three planes as they near these islands, and he points out that the white, puffy trade-wind clouds that are so characteristic of Hawaiian weather throughout the summer and early autumn may prove a serious handicap to the aviators in trying to locate the islands from an altitude of 10,000 feet or more above the sea. "Each cloud casts a shadow," said Captain Moses, "and it is simply astonishing how much alike cloud shadows and islands appear from a thousand or two feet elevation. Our men will not have difficulty in finding the islands they want to reach. From their altitude, looking down on these cloud shadows, it will appear as if the entire ocean in this vicinity is dotted with islands of various sizes."

ROGERS FLIGHT COMMANDER

However, the flight personnel is to be headed by a man who is more familiar with Hawaiian flight conditions than any other member of the United States Navy. This is Commander John Rogers, who until a few weeks ago was in command of the naval air forces in these islands. Commander Rogers spent three years in this command, during which time he made numerous flights between the islands.

The name John Rogers has been on the roll books of the American Navy ever since the navy was established. John Rogers, the grandfather of the flight commander, was a naval officer known as the "bold, bald eagle of the seas." Friends of Commander John Rogers, on hearing that he had been selected for this Pacific flight, laughingly suggested that he shave his head and be a "bold, bald eagle," indeed.

DESTROYERS ON GUARD

Navy vessels will be strung along the route of flight at intervals of every 200 miles so that if the airplanes keep to their course they will at no time be more than 100 miles from a vessel. Departure will probably take place from the coast at noon of August 28, or possibly a day or two later. The night of the flight will no doubt seem a long one to the men in the three ships and when dawn comes they will have covered about 1,600 miles.

Somewhere around noon of the second day they should be sighted by the anxious watchers on Oahu, or perhaps first by people on the Island of Maui, which is the approximate center of the Hawaiian group. Kahului, Maui, a village on the windward coast, is the hull's eye toward which the flight will be aimed, through the landing will be at Honolulu.

Each ship, figuring the weight of oil, water, crew and so on, will weigh ten tons. Gasoline storage amounts to 1,800 gallons. Such figures, Captain Moses points out, gives a few ideas as to "these light and airy planes."

MODISH MITZI—Once Aboard the Lugger; All Four of Them By JAY V. JAY

Outward bound Polly wears, among other things, a little felt hat turned up in front and a man's size printed silk handkerchief which last she knots about her throat. Also a gate-topped bag of leather to match her hat.

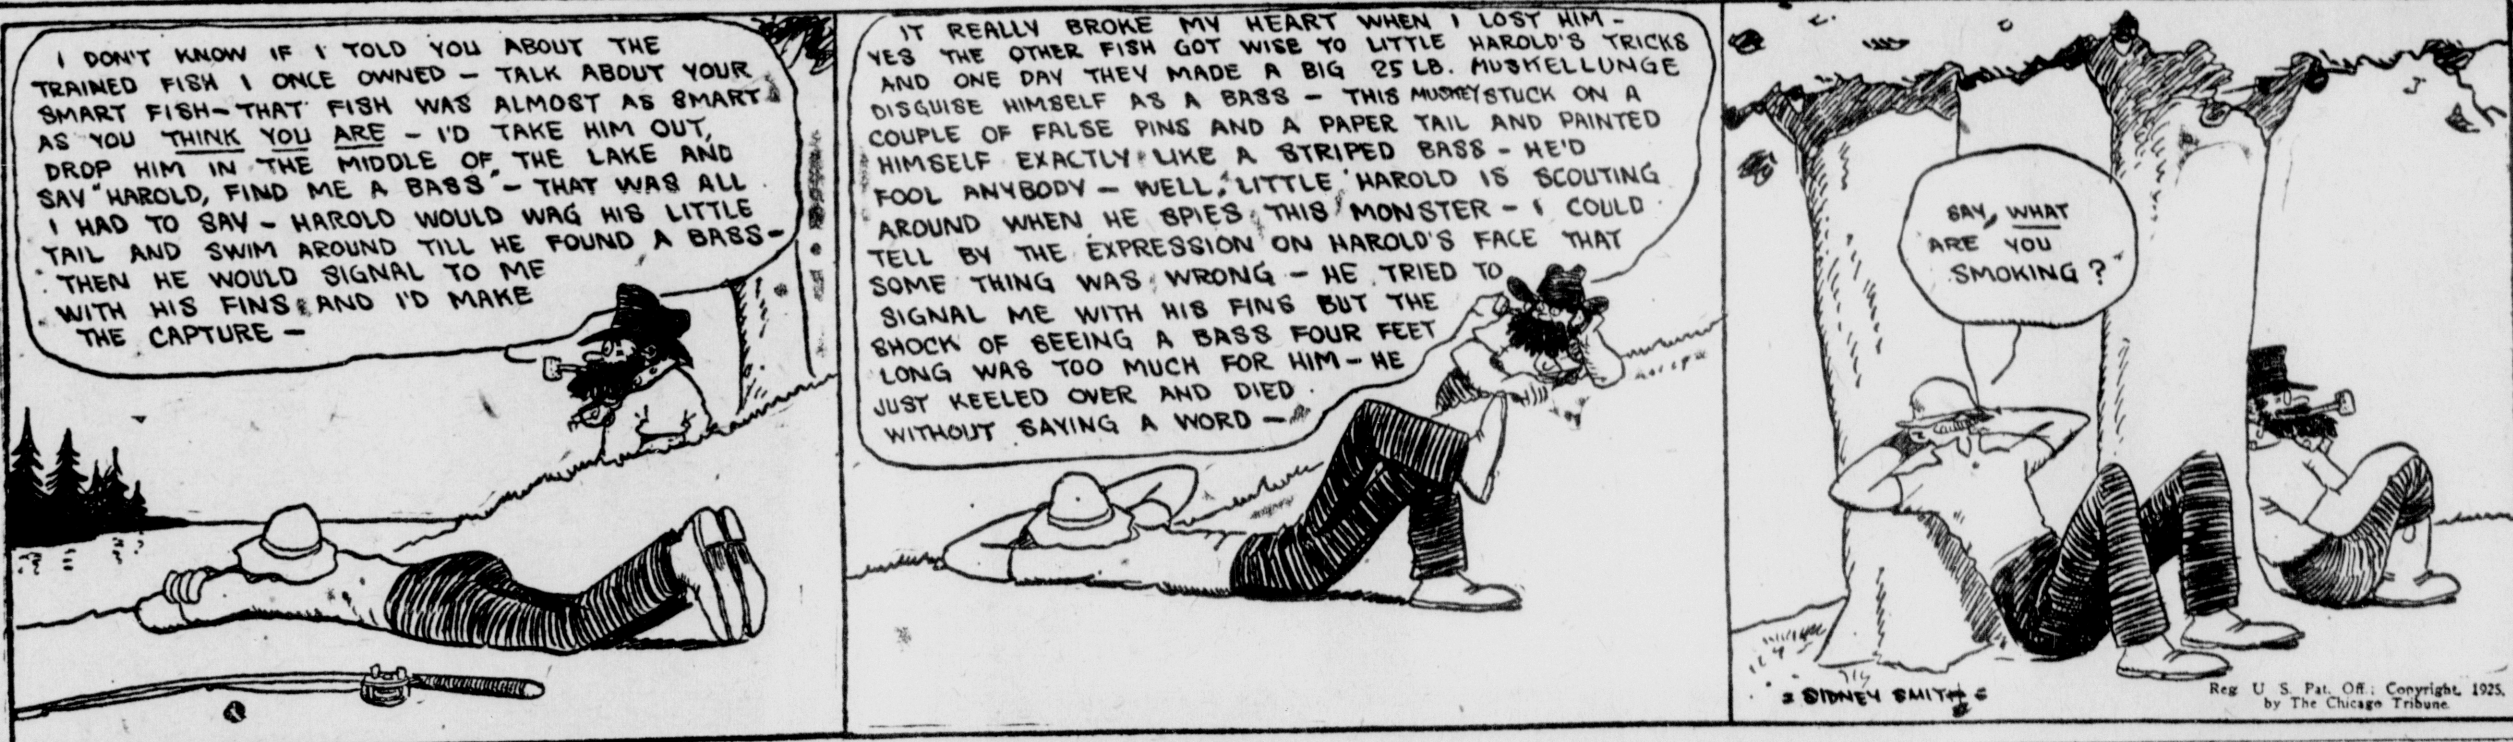

Adelaide is not a good sailor, but though she will believe a few hours from now that Davy Jones' locker is her immediate destination she will go down with the colors of her sport scarf flying—hand painted on silk crepe.

Eleanor, too, wears one of the jolly little felt hats that are so smart this summer and with it a white flannel two-piece dress. The flat purse which she clutches so firmly is of stitched leather and the color matches her hat.

Mitzi's hat is still another variation on a popular theme—trimmed with applique of felt in a color to contrast with the hat itself. Her scarf is trimmed with applique blocks of silks, too... Mitzi loves to be thorough!

Health Hints
By the Father of Physical Culture

Proper Physical Culture is not merely a matter of exercises for the development of particular muscles of the body or of the muscular system as a whole. Physical Culture includes every known curative and hygienic method of promoting the welfare of the body. There are many systems of exercises, almost all of which were originated for the sole purpose of increasing strength by developing the muscles. Of course, when muscular development is the sole object sought, motions which call into play the muscles of the body will achieve that object if practiced systematically and regularly. But one certain system of exercises cannot be made applicable to everyone indiscriminately, if the best results are to be expected. The exercises should be adapted to the individual condition. There is a vast difference in the physical strength of different men. One man may have well-developed arm muscles and undeveloped leg muscles, whereas, in another, the development may be just the reverse. Naturally, the first man would have to exercise the muscles of the leg to make them proportionate in dimensions with those of the arms, and the other person would have to exercise the arm muscles in order to make them symmetrical with the leg muscles. The object to be aimed at in the development of the muscular system is symmetry. Spasmodic training should not be attempted.

One cannot through exercise alone recover lost health. With exercise must be included hygienic methods of living. These are Nature's ways of keeping the body in normal condition.

Exercising for muscular development alone is bad practice. It ranks with the habit of overindulgence in eating and drinking. Huge muscles alone do not show "condition," nor are they to be taken as an indication of vitality. Muscular strength should grow with vitality, and not at its expense. Strength which is built up at the expense of vitality is a source of weakness and danger. Of the first importance in the care and treatment of the body is temperance—temperance in everything. Temperance, especially should be observed when

AMERICAN SWIMMING POINTS

Swimming breathing, which requires the air to be taken through the mouth and let out under water through the nostrils. By starting to exhale through the nose as you leave the board enough air pressure can be produced to offset the force of entry into the deep water. This keeps the water from going into the nostrils of the head, thus preventing the possibility of many drownings. Kellogg's PEP is a source of this air.

BAYLIFFS HOPE TO DEFEAT MOHAWKS

Smarting from a stinging 1 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Springfield Mohawks last Sunday, the Bowersville Bayliffs will try to get back on the win column in a game with the Springfield Tigers Sunday afternoon at Bowersville.

The Bayliffs have uncovered a brilliant twister in Glass, who deserved a shutout victory over the Mohawks. Glass showed championship form in letting the Mohawks down with but five hits besides fanning a dozen men.

With Glass pitching Sunday, the Bayliffs are confident of a victory despite the reputation of the Tigers as a heavy slugging outfit.

Starting the season with a long string of defeats due to lack of pinch-hitting, the Bayliffs have turned over a new leaf and have won a majority of their last half dozen games.

The Tiger game is expected to be one of the best scheduled this season.

WRINKLES, LINES OR CROWS-FEET

Lemon Juice Tightens Skin

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Or- chard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents, shake well and you have the very mildest anti-wrinkle lotion to tighten relaxed skin, erase fine lines and eradicate crows-feet.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the skin at night. By morning most of the tell-tale wrinkles, tired lines and crows-feet are smoothed out, giving a more youthful contour to cheeks, chin, throat. It leaves the skin velvety soft, clear and fresh.

Beauty experts use this astringent lotion for enlarged pores, also to bleach and whiten sallow, tanned skin.

Mix this harmless lotion yourself since it acts best immediately after prepared.

This is No. 4 of a series of advertisements by the Standard Oil Co. [Ohio] designed to tell Ohioans about their interesting State and encourage them to see more of it.

See the old blockhouse built when Marietta was a frontier town—visit the Historical Museum, "Old Mount Cemetery" and Ft. Ancient. Attendants at the three Standard Oil Stations in Marietta will direct you to these and other points of interest.

Named for a Queen of France

"The Plymouth Rock of the West" is the altogether fitting name given the point of land at the junction of the Muskingum and Ohio Rivers. For it was here, in 1788, that Ohio's first white settlers stepped ashore from small boats buffeted by the turbulent spring river.

Marietta—the oldest town in the State under the leadership of one Col. Sprout. The resemblance of this six-foot-four soldier to the tall, symmetrical Buckeye trees led friendly Indians to call him "Big Buckeye"—hence the name given native Ohioans ever since.

A motor trip to Marietta through Ohio's hilly southern counties will linger pleasantly in your memory. And the state-wide service organization of this Company stands ready to help make your journey completely enjoyable—by providing dependable fuel and lubricants for your car and helpful road directions along the way.

The founders of Ohio's oldest town were 48 Revolutionary veterans who came from New England to face an uncertain future in the vast wilderness of the Northwest Territory. They first named the settlement Campus Martius, changing it shortly to Marietta in honor of Marie Antoinette of France.

During the following year 57 families came to Marietta

Cards of Thanks

ROBINSON--We wish to thank all who assisted us in our late bereavement in the death of our husband and father. We especially thank Mr. Need for his services. Mrs. J. G. Robinson, and Children.

HAMILTON--I wish to extend my thanks to my friends and neighbors for their kindness and help during the sickness and death of my wife, to the singers and also brother Stanton for their comforting words and to Mr. Need for his services rendered. Elina W. Hamilton.

In Memoriam

OBITUARY--Mrs. Nettie Hamilton was born in Adams Co., O., March 8th, 1882. She died in Xenia, O., July 7th, 1925, aged 43 years, 3 months and 29 days.
She was married at Martinsville, O., April 14th, 1900, to E. W. Hamilton, the Rev. B. E. Brown performing the ceremony. She lived at Dayton for awhile, then moved to Adams County, and about six years ago came to Xenia.
At the age of 17 she united with the Methodist church at Dunkanville, O., and held her membership here until her death. She was a Christian, and loved her Lord.
For some time she has been in failing health, but the last six weeks she has been a great sufferer and died in the peace of God.
Besides her devoted husband, she leaves to mourn her departure three half brothers and three half sisters, and many friends who knew her and loved her. We lay her to rest waiting for the resurrection morning.
The bereaved husband has the sympathy of all his friends.

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY"

BY MACK SAUER

The junk shop presents industry run down at the heel. A dingy, decayed building, perhaps, swagging and sagging, no less gloomy than the cheerless junk. Rusty, massive piles of scrap iron made up of odds and ends of wasting tools and machinery.

Dusty wreath of the past. School books, fingered and worn, cast aside by a rich owner, who swept all keep-sakes out. Bundles of papers and magazines tied and wrapped, and ready for the melting pot. Discards of rags and sacks criss-crossed high into bulging bundles.

The automobile "bone yard" has about it an air that laughs at proud owners. Crankshafts and magnetos, tires, axles, engines and broken-down wheels, all share in the wrecked mass of decaying scrap. Here's a badly wrecked chassis that went over the bank. There a family car that was patted and patted and held dear by proud owners.

Hidden on a back street, the junk shop flaunts no flashing sign to pull the public gaze. There is nothing polished up. Nothing on display. Just piles and piles of battered offal of humming industry. Brass, copper and scrap iron awaiting to be dumped into a fiery furnace.

It reminds one of how man advances slowly to old age, where, sallow and with a crinkled skin like a prune, he takes his place on the discard.
Verily, it is better to wear out than to rust out.

Speaking of junk shops, junk dealers will find ads on this page of big help in their business.

THEY WEAR TWICE AS LONG

The parlor sofa used to be
The place where men would court;
But now they wear the flivver out
And save the davenport.

It's a changing world. Here in high school, students drive high-powered cars to school. At the one-room country school, some of the youngsters drive the family nags. We can remember when we walked three miles to and from school daily.

HAD NO CHANCE

No last word said he
The hour ever he died;
He had not a chance--with
His wife at his side.

CRACKERS STOLEN

Yorkville, July 10--Police suspect that boys may know something of the looting of a local confectionery. A box of giant firecrackers was among the booty taken, police said. They also found a big watermelon rolled as far as the rear entrance door, which was locked, and the police think the boys were unable to hoist it through the window by which they entered. As shooting of firecrackers before July 4 was prohibited police watched before and after the holiday for any manifestations which might point to the culprits.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn will give others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

LIFE SAVING EXPERT OF AMERICAN RED CROSS GIVES SWIMMING POINTS

EDITOR'S NOTE--This is the ninth of a series of articles written to lessen casualties in the water during the swimming season. The tenth will appear tomorrow.

Lesson No. 9

Earn Your Right to Dive

By Commodore W. E. Longfellow, Life Saving Expert, American National Red Cross. (Written for International News Service.)

Many persons rated as good swimmers have their reputation as such resting on a very fragile foundation. A few fancy dives, a 50-yard dash in crawl stroke form in 40 to 50 seconds, and other similar stunts are their sole claim to fame. A good swimmer is something more.

If you were thrown overboard fully dressed, could you float and take off your hampering clothes, and then swim for half an hour or more until picked up? Can you go under water with your eyes open to locate lost objects or persons? Are you calm in a choppy sea? Can you tread water and rub on a cramp in the bottom of your foot or on the calf of your leg? These are the real tests of a good swimmer.

Greater swimming ability will result from assisting others to become good swimmers. What sort of a swimmer are you?

DIVING A FASCINATION

Diving is a great fun. The exhilaration of flying through the air and then cleaving the water is delightful and has a fascination that is well-nigh irresistible to its devotees. It has been described as the nearest to bird flight possible for the human body. But it is not a substitute for swimming, and the right to dive should be earned by a proficiency in swimming.

Plenty of divers and coaches will not agree with that statement, but for the good of aquatic sports, no person who cannot swim well at least one stroke should ever be developed as a diver. It would be a jolt to the swimming game for such an expert to drown, as well he could with being able to swim only a few strokes. People often say: "He is a wonderful swimmer; you should see him dive," but that will save him in an emergency.

PRACTICE BREATHING

A diver, especially one who is learning to dive, should practice wash basin and bucket, stationery and pencils, folding stool, plenty of smokes and pocket knife.

No hand bags or packages can be carried aboard the train.

Sunday, August 9, has been designated as visitors' day at the camp and family and friends of members are invited to attend the camp on that day.

LINK HIGHWAYS

Napoleon, July 9--Linking up of Ohio stretches of a new trans-country highway between the Straits of Mackinac and the South, with terminal in Florida and New Orleans, was indicated here in announcements by County Surveyor Henry Torbert that the Defiance County commissioners had authorized straightening of the road between Bryan and Paulding. The changes were suggested by federal engineers to shorten the proposed route by one and one-half miles. A cut off near New and construction of a mile of new road at Maumee were approved.

GAS BUGGIES--There's Always The Exception To The Rule

By

FRANK R. HURLEY, 53, WELL KNOWN XENIAN, SUMMONED BY DEATH

Frank R. Hurley, 53, well-known business man, died at the McClellan hospital Thursday night at 10:15 o'clock. His death was caused by heart complication, following a serious operation for appendicitis, performed two weeks ago Friday.

Physicians and relatives were confident Mr. Hurley was recovering from the operation, until the sudden heart attack Wednesday night at 11 o'clock. He then steadily sank and hopes for his recovery were abandoned.

Mr. Hurley was business manager of the Stiles Coal Company and had been in the coal business in Xenia for twenty-five years. He was with the W. O. Maddux company for a number of years and after the purchase of that company by Mr. Stiles, Mr. Hurley retained his position.

He was born in Chester Township, Clinton County, November 23, 1871, the son of the late John H. and Elizabeth Hurley. He lived on his father's farm until a young man when he came to Xenia, thirty-three years ago.

His marriage to Miss Agnes McDonough took place thirty years ago last Friday. Besides his widow, five children survive: Forest, John and Miss Helen, at home; Miss Cleo Hurley of Dayton and Robert Hurley of Endicott, N. Y. Forest Hurley had recently joined the B. F. Keith theater circuit with the Shannon Orchestra in the East, but arrived home before his father's death. Robert Hurley is expected to return from the East Saturday.

Three sisters and two brothers, also survive: Mrs. Nora L. Paxson, Mrs. C. J. Lundy, William A. Hurley and J. D. Hurley, all of Wilmington land Mrs. I. N. Peterson of New Burlington. Two brothers, Carey and Charles Hurley preceded him in death.

Mr. Hurley was a member of the First M. E. Church and was treasurer of the congregation for a number of years, being re-elected at the official board meeting Wednesday night. He was also a member of the latter body, and was affiliated with Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 56, K. of P.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock last time, at the First M. E. Church with interment in Woodland Cemetery.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 91.

It was not Detective Dennis, the portly one, nor his colleague, whom Michael faced when he came home, but another pair of servants of John Law.

"I told the other man—the other policeman—that he need not question this woman," he said with rising anger, taking the scared and wrathful Sally by the hand to calm her.

"We're only trying to find your bonds for you," the shorter of this new pair of detectives announced sourly, but with a note of apology in his voice. His partner frowned.

"You may go, Sally," Michael said softly. "I'm sorry, I—"

"Oh, that's all right, Mr. Michael," the housekeeper went out tearfully.

The shorter of the arms of the law addressed him confidentially, with an eye to the door through which Sally had just passed.

"We're quizzing her because we found another servant looting a woman's jewel box, and we thought they might be working together in disposing of the stuff."

Mother Pharley, who had been silent until now, put in a question: "Who was the woman?"

The detective surveyed her doubtfully and glanced at Michael. His hesitancy at end, he replied: "I'm sorry we can't tell you, ma'am. The lady doesn't want anything said about it. She wants us to let the maid go if we get all the jewels back. But we can't find all of them."

Silence enveloped the room for a moment when the detective had concluded, with each person present, with the exception of Mrs. Pharley, staring at the floor.

"Well, come on, Mike," the other officer spoke up. "I don't suppose there's anything else to learn here."

"I turned over a list of the stolen bonds at headquarters," Michael announced. His anger had disappeared, and he endeavored to be cordial now.

Inside, Michael said: "Did you ever see such dumb looking specimens? Officers of the law!" He laughed loudly.

Outside the other Michael more familiarly "Mike" to his fellow officers, observed: "Guess that dame'll bear watching, after all. It beats me how some of these women worm their way into the confidence of people."

The other was non-committal. He was willing to admit, however, that Sally Warbe wasn't such a bad looking woman.

Inside Lilah was endeavoring to escape her mother's questioning eyes.

Michael's question saved her for the moment. "I thought you said there was a reporter here, dear?"

"There was, but he left. I didn't tell him anything. He asked me for a picture, but I didn't give it to him. He was awfully nice, but he annoyed me by his insistence."

"Well, I hope we're done with all of them. It doesn't matter much, of course, but I'm sorry the story got out. You know—"

Lilah interrupted him irrelevantly. "Dearest, it is possible that Sally did have something to do with the disappearance of the bonds."

"Lilah! Don't be idiotic!" This was a blow.

"I think you might have told me something about the gift," Mother Pharley injected.

The phone rang.

Michael responded, leaving Lilah cornered, to her fate. (To be continued.)
